?Can I track Service Level Agreements in Deskpro

If you have a Service Level Agreement you've agreed to meet with a customer, you can make sure your agents are aware of it, and get reports .on whether the SLA is being met

Deskpro has built-in support for SLAs. Go to Admin > Business Rules >.SLAs to define your SLA

Agents can see exactly which tickets are covered by SLAs, are close to failing, and have failed. As well as passively tracking this, you can have your helpdesk automatically run actions based on SLA status - for example, .to alert managers to tickets that are about to fail

SLAs
Running (0) Completed (2) User waiting time until next agent Time until first response
Until first response Time until first respon	rse
Completed 1 sec	Required 4 mins

You can get detailed custom reports on SLA status through the Reports .interface

.For full details on how to use SLAs, see the Admin Guide
