You can watch this video for a quick tour of the Publishing Interface in the Deskpro interface. The Publish interface is where you can create, manage, and publish content that is hosted on your end-user-facing Help Center.

You can create and manage 5 different types of Help Center content:

- Knowledgebase Articles: These are typically used to create quick help articles that provide how-to information or answer FAQs.
- Guide Pages: Let you create an indexed library of instructional manuals, such as structured information about using a product or service.
- News Posts: News lets you share point-in-time information with users, so you can communicate time-sensitive information like an announcement, or blog posts.
- Files: You can host downloadable files for your end-users, organized into categories.
- Community: A forum area where users can submit questions, feedback, or suggestions, and vote and comment on previous submissions.
