

Community forums not showing up on the Help Center

If you have enabled Community on your Help Center, but there aren't any forums displaying for End-Users to submit topics, this will be related to permissions. You need to give specific usergroups access before they will be visible to different groups of your end users.

Firstly, you will need to make sure that the Usergroups that you want to access the Community component have the relevant permissions:

In Admin, go to CRM > Usergroups and select the Usergroup from the list that you want to have access to Community, when the menu opens go to Permissions > Help Center, and toggle the relevant options to control how members of the Usergroup can use the Community component:

Information	Permissions	Departments
Ticket	Chat	Help Center
Community Permis...	Q	Toggle All
Can use community	<input checked="" type="checkbox"/>
Can submit new community topics	<input checked="" type="checkbox"/>
New Community topics are visible immediately (do not require agent review)	<input checked="" type="checkbox"/>
Can vote on community topics	<input checked="" type="checkbox"/>
Submit comments on community topics	<input checked="" type="checkbox"/>
New comments are visible immediately	<input checked="" type="checkbox"/>
Can share community topics	<input checked="" type="checkbox"/>

If members of the Usergroup are then still not able to submit and interact with Community Topics, then you will need to update the permission settings on an individual Community Forum to give the Usergroup access.

To do this, go to Help Center > Community > Forums. Then select the Forum you want the Usergroup to have access to and add them as an option on the Usergroup checklist:

Edit: Suggestions and New Ideas!
