Create a custom user field that must have a different value for each user. This field would require unique data, so that no user could have the same value as another user.

 In our context, we would use this for Local Machine ID, Virtual Machine ID, user name, and office location. I’m sure other DeskPro admins could find good uses for a field like this. It could be used as a rudimentary form of asset tracking, or even for something as simple as verifying unique identifiers.
