

Can one user from an organization see all that organization's tickets?

Ben Henley - 2018-04-17 - Comments (0) - Using Deskpro

Question

I have multiple users for one organization. How can I have one of those user accounts be a main/master account that can view all open and resolved tickets for that organization?

Answer

You can do this with the Deskpro organization managers feature. You can make a user a manager from the agent interface, either in the organization record or the user's record.

See the agent manual for details.

The screenshot shows the 'MEMBERS' section of an organization in Deskpro. It lists two members: 'Kyler Abbott' and 'Dalton Christiansen'. A yellow callout box points to a gear icon next to Dalton Christiansen with the text 'Click to set as organization manager.' Below this, a navigation bar shows 'Welcome back Daenerys' and 'Your Account' with a dropdown menu open, highlighting 'Organization Tickets (33)'.

Organization managers can see all their organization's tickets by logging into the portal, and they can also choose to automatically join all the tickets as a CC'd user from the portal Edit your profile page.
